

PERSONAL INJURY CLAIMS

Roberts Nehmer McKee acts in claims for personal injuries including injuries caused by motor vehicle accidents and workplace injuries.

We will make an early assessment of the economic viability of the claim and will explain the process and legal costs obligations in clear terms before any steps are taken.

There are stringent time limits that apply for personal injury claims. It is important that potential claimants and respondents to claims obtain legal advice at the earliest possible time.

Whether you are considering making a claim or you have received notice of a claim made against you, we can help.

We will provide clients with a clear and understandable guide as to how their claim will progress with regular reports given during the course of the claim. Costs will also be fully explained, particularly in the context of recoverable costs, which can in some cases impact significantly on settlements offered by insurers.

Our team aims to make the process as simple and as understandable as possible during what will invariably be one of the most difficult times of the injured client's life.

Advertising restrictions in Queensland prevent detailing our experience and expertise in this area.
